

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE HISTORY OF THE WORLD

CONFERENCE: The International Conference on the History of the World was held in Beijing, China, from 1993 to 1997. It was the first time that a world conference of this kind had been held. The conference was organized by the Chinese Academy of Social Sciences and the Chinese Society for World History. It was a landmark event in the history of world history research and international academic exchange.

The conference was held in four sessions: the first session was held in Beijing in 1993, the second in Beijing in 1994, the third in Beijing in 1995, and the fourth in Beijing in 1997. Each session focused on a different theme related to world history, such as the history of the world, the history of China, and the history of the world's major civilizations.

The conference was a success in many ways. It brought together scholars from all over the world to discuss and exchange ideas on world history. It also promoted international cooperation and understanding in the field of world history research.
