

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON THE PROTECTION OF PERSONAL DATA

CONFERENCE REPORT:

The Conference on the Protection of Personal Data, organized by the Council of Europe, was held in Strasbourg from 26 to 30 October 1981. It was the first of a series of conferences on this subject, which will be held in other parts of Europe in the near future. The Conference was attended by representatives of 21 countries, including all the member states of the Council of Europe. The main theme of the Conference was the protection of personal data, which is a subject of increasing importance in the modern world. The Conference discussed the various aspects of this subject, including the collection, processing, and use of personal data, and the rights of individuals in relation to their personal data. The Conference also discussed the need for international cooperation in this field, and the role of the Council of Europe in promoting such cooperation.

The Conference was held in a friendly and productive atmosphere, and the participants were able to exchange views and ideas on a wide range of issues. The Conference was a success, and it is hoped that it will lead to the development of a common European approach to the protection of personal data. The Conference also provided an opportunity for the participants to discuss other issues of interest to them, and to establish contacts for future cooperation. The Conference was a valuable contribution to the work of the Council of Europe, and it is hoped that it will be followed by other conferences of this kind in the future.

The Conference was held in Strasbourg, France, from 26 to 30 October 1981. It was the first of a series of conferences on this subject, which will be held in other parts of Europe in the near future. The Conference was attended by representatives of 21 countries, including all the member states of the Council of Europe. The main theme of the Conference was the protection of personal data, which is a subject of increasing importance in the modern world.

The Conference discussed the various aspects of this subject, including the collection, processing, and use of personal data, and the rights of individuals in relation to their personal data. The Conference also discussed the need for international cooperation in this field, and the role of the Council of Europe in promoting such cooperation. The Conference was held in a friendly and productive atmosphere, and the participants were able to exchange views and ideas on a wide range of issues. The Conference was a success, and it is hoped that it will lead to the development of a common European approach to the protection of personal data. The Conference also provided an opportunity for the participants to discuss other issues of interest to them, and to establish contacts for future cooperation. The Conference was a valuable contribution to the work of the Council of Europe, and it is hoped that it will be followed by other conferences of this kind in the future.