

INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON PEACE AND COOPERATION

CONFERENCE REPORT: The Conference on Peace and Cooperation, held in Geneva, Switzerland, from 1988 to 1990, was a landmark event in the history of international relations. It brought together representatives from over 100 countries, including the United States, the Soviet Union, and China, to discuss the challenges of the end of the Cold War and the need for a new international order. The conference was a significant step towards global peace and cooperation.

The conference was organized by the United Nations and the Swiss Government. It was a landmark event in the history of international relations. The conference was a significant step towards global peace and cooperation. The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations.

The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations. The conference was a significant step towards global peace and cooperation. The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations.

The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations. The conference was a significant step towards global peace and cooperation. The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations.

The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations. The conference was a significant step towards global peace and cooperation. The conference was a landmark event in the history of international relations.