

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE LITERATURE

INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF COMPARATIVE LITERATURE
(IJC) is a quarterly journal of comparative literature and literary studies. It is published by the American Comparative Literature Association (ACLA). The journal is devoted to the study of literature in its international context and to the study of literary theory and criticism. It is a forum for the most original and innovative research in the field.

The journal is published by the American Comparative Literature Association (ACLA). The journal is devoted to the study of literature in its international context and to the study of literary theory and criticism. It is a forum for the most original and innovative research in the field.

The journal is published by the American Comparative Literature Association (ACLA). The journal is devoted to the study of literature in its international context and to the study of literary theory and criticism. It is a forum for the most original and innovative research in the field.

The journal is published by the American Comparative Literature Association (ACLA). The journal is devoted to the study of literature in its international context and to the study of literary theory and criticism. It is a forum for the most original and innovative research in the field.

The journal is published by the American Comparative Literature Association (ACLA). The journal is devoted to the study of literature in its international context and to the study of literary theory and criticism. It is a forum for the most original and innovative research in the field.